

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A transmission power control apparatus for a wireless communication apparatus which reduces a power value of a signal input to a power amplifier to the maximum allowable input power value of the power amplifier or below is provided in which the transmission power control apparatus includes: a part for setting a transmission power upper limit value of a call according to a circuit type of the call; and a part for reducing transmission power for the call to the transmission power upper limit value or below.

10050861.011802